Shawn Cole joins St. Joseph's Hospital as Clinical Manager of CVICU

Parkersburg, W.Va. – St. Joseph's Hospital is pleased to welcome Shawn Cole, RN as the Clinical Manager of the Cardiovascular Intensive Care Unit (CVICU). Cole began his nursing career in 2004 after graduating from the WVU-P School of Nursing. Cole previously worked in the cardiac cath lab at St. Joseph's. He was most recently the Health Services Supervisor for Pleasants and Ritchie Counties for the past two years.

"We are delighted that Shawn has returned to St. Joseph's Hospital and joined our team as the CVICU Clinical Manager," stated St. Joseph's Interim Chief Nursing Officer Susan Long. "Shawn was selected to lead our CVICU because of his commitment to providing the best possible care to our cardiac patients." Cole has extensive nursing experience in Emergency, Cardiac Cath and Open-Heart Surgery Recovery.

"I am honored to be part of the cardiac team at St. Joseph's," said Cole. "Our CVICU is staffed by a team of skilled and dedicated cardiac professionals that care for patients after they have had open-heart surgery, angioplasty or advanced cardiac services."

Cole is a native of Wheeling and graduated from Ritchie County High School. He previously worked at Kaiser/Century Aluminum and Kemron as an analytical chemist after completing his undergraduate studies at Marshall. He and his wife Amy reside in Harrisville with their two sons. Cole is involved in youth sports by coaching football, baseball and wrestling.
